

We, together?

by sidboy

Category: Zootopia

Genre: Friendship, Romance

Language: English

Characters: Judy H., Nick W.

Status: Completed

Published: 2016-04-08 22:34:23

Updated: 2016-04-10 19:12:21

Packaged: 2016-04-27 21:39:01

Rating: K+

Chapters: 2

Words: 2,469

Publisher: www.fanfiction.net

Summary: After Nick accepted Judy's offer to become a police officer and be her partner, their friendship become stronger, better and healthier. But both know that they have deal with something between them. Only the moments they share will be able to say what will happen between, if they will let the Love win. (Multi-chapter story about their lives after Zootopia - Chapter 1 is improved!)

1. Chapter 1

In the Gazelle's concert to celebrate the union and peace of Zootopia, Judy and Nick had a lot o f fun together. They danced together, talked during all the night, smiled. But they have to deal with something difficult. They knew after all the time together, trying to solve the case, they developed something strong for each other. That was really bothering Nick, because for the first time, someone believed that a fox could more than just a stereotype. He didn't understand why Judy did that.

After the show, Nick and Judy were walking to the parking, to Judy's car. Talking about the recent events and the show.

"I didn't know you liked Gazelle that much, Carrots." Nick mocked her.

"Well, I do like her, especially her new song." She replied, smiling.

"I thought people from the farms didn't even know about her." He laugh.

"Hey!" She exclaimed. "I can be from a farm, but I am modern too!"

"I know, I am just kidding!" He gave her a little push.

"C'mon, let me give you a ride." She said, entering in the car.

"Sure." He got in the car.

While driving backwards to Zootopia, they were silent for some time, until Judy broke the silence.

"So, what will you do now you have a real job?" She wondered, because she made him a cop, her partner.

"I don't know..." He said. "I never believe a fox could have a job like that."

"You can have stability now!" She said. "You won't need to get in trouble anymore."

"That is true." He agreed with her.

After that, they were silent for some minutes. Until Nick talked again.

"I guess you owe me an explanation." He said, a bit nervous.

"About what?" She looked his for some seconds, than looked back to the street again.

"You had a fox repellent..." He replied. "Why?"

"I guess I didn't told that." She smiled.

"No, you didn't." He laugh.

"Well, when I was 8 or 9 years old, a fox hit me on my cheek because I tried to get my friends' tickets back. I got the tickets back, but since then I was a bit afraid of foxes. When I moved to Zootopia, my parents gave me that, so I take it with me to make them happy."

"What made you change your mind about foxes?" He wondered. He knew what he wanted to know. She looked him.

"When I saw you trying to buy that ice cream your 'kid', you didn't look so evil, you know." She replied, calmly. "Then I saw what you did with that ice cream..."

"I don't blame you for getting mad because of that..." Nick smiled.

"Even that is illegal..." She was getting a bit emotional. "You didn't mean to hurt anyone. You were just working for a living." She stopped the car to put herself together.

"Hey, you don't need to get emotional." He pulled her closer and hugged her.

"I know..." She said, with some tears. "I am sorry."

"Don't worry." He put his paw on her head.

"Now..." She said, cleaning her tears, and getting back on the road.
"You owe me an explanation."

"What explanation?" He was a little confused.

"Why you helped me finish the case when you didn't have to?" She knew she wanted to hear.

"You got me there." He was a bit afraid of telling the truth.

"C'mon, you can tell me." She gave him a little push to talk.

"Alrightâ€|" He rolled his eyes. "No one never asked for help to a fox, no one."

"So, I was the first one?" She asked, smiling.

"Yeah..." He said, softly. "You made me feel useful, special..."

"Ohâ€| Nick..." She didn't know he could have such a good heart.

"And being with you..." He said, making her blushing. "â€| was the best thing that ever happened to me."

"You really mean that?" She took his paw.

"Yes..." He replied. "That was the reason I was so upset with your first speech, I felt like what we had been through was nothing to you..."

"What happened between us mean a lot to me, sly fox..." She said, looking to his eyes. "Thinking that I could lose who put me where I am now was awful. That is the reason I felt so guilty."

Nick didn't believe her in first place. He knew for sure that he was important for someone. They remain in silence until the end of the ride. After a few minutes of driving, they finally arrived at Judy's apartment. Judy parked in condo park. So the walked together to the entrance of the building.

"You have anyplace to crash?" She asked, innocently.

"Actually, no..." He said, sadly. "I used to spent my money with other stuff less important than a house..." Judy didn't want to leave him alone in the night.

"This can sound a little crazy..." She was nervous to say that. "You can stay with me until you find some place..." That didn't sound crazy in her head.

"Really? You want me..." He was interrupted by her.

"Yeah, the apartment is small but I think it can handle two animals inside." She smiled to him.

"If you say so." He was surprised.

So they went upstairs to her apartment. Judy managed to put another bed in her apartment in case someone needed to stay there. She had a big heart for that stuff. Both really wanted to take a rest. Judy was lying down when Nick was using his cellphone, a little apprehensive.

"Is there anything wrong?" She asked, softly. Then she got up and walked to him.

"No..." He was a little shocked. "I was just checking something stuffâ€|"

"You seem a little worried..." She said, softly.

"Maybe I am..." He replied.

"You know you can tell me..." She said, hugging him.

"I don't know if I should..." He said, trying to hide what he really wanted to say.

"Why you shouldn't?" She said, trying to convince him to say it.

"I don't know..." He said, sitting beside her on her bed. "Does it sound right to you?"

"What do you mean?" She said, softly.

"You knowâ€|" He said sadly. "You and meâ€| togetherâ€|"

"Nick..." She said, surprised.

"I know, that is dumb." He said, a little worried. I shouldn't..."

"Nick..." She said, calmly. "It's okay."

"What?" He said, surprised.

"I thought about that too." She replied. "About us."

"You really think about that?" He said, with a tiny smile.

"Yes, of course." She said, blushing. "I was in doubt tooâ€| if that was rightâ€|"

"So..." He said, expecting she had some conclusion. "What do you think about us?"

"You know..." She said, avoid his eyes. "First, I thought that was really wrong..."

"I don't blame you..." He replied, a bit sad.

"But I realized that..." She said, looking to his green eyes, smiling. "There is no one I want besides you."

His eyes shined, he smiled.

"I want you too." He said, hugging her. "But what everyone will say?"

"Why we should care about that?" She couldn't help but smile. "Dumb fox." Then she lay down and called him.

"Sly bunny." He smiled back. Laying beside her and hugging her from behind.

"Good night." She said, yawning.

"Good night, Carrots." He replied, kissing her forehead.

So they lay down to finally take a peaceful rest.

They didn't need any approval to be who they want to be. They didn't need any approval to be together. It does not matter what everyone will say, if they are happy, it is okay.

* * *

>Hello, dear readers! I watched Zootopia yesterday and I loved the movie! Nick and Judy are my new favorite couple! I couldn't hold myself and I had to write this. Take easy on reviews because I just watched the movie once.

**Thanks for reading! Review, please!**

2. Chapter 2

After a few weeks, Nick finally managed to move to his own apartment, close to Judy's one. Now the fox and the bunny shared their feelings for each other, everything should be fine between them, except for one. Since the incident in Natural History Museum Nick keeps having nightmares about that day. Every time he had a nightmare like that, he woke up desperate.

Friday night. After a day of hard work, Nick and Judy were very tired and needed a good night sleep, a night Nick couldn't have. As they walked into the building, they were talking.

"So, what hard day today!" Judy said, smiling.

"Yeah, really hard, chasing that guy around the city wasn't easy." Nick replied, looking at her.

"I thought we wouldn't make it, can you believe me?" Judy laughs.

"I can't, dumb bunny." He teased her. "You know we had more difficult cases than that."

"I know, sly fox." She looked him, laughing.

"You know you wouldn't have done without me." He mocked her.

"I chose you to be my partner, didn't I?" She said, hugging him. Then, they reached Judy's door.

"Good night, Carrots, see you tomorrow." He said, kissing her forehead.

"Good night, see you." She said, kissing his muzzle.

As Nick was walking to his apartment, he remembered he was afraid of sleeping because of his nightmares. But he didn't have a choice. He was exhausted. In a few minutes he prepared everything to sleep, peacefully, at least he hoped.

After a few hours of sleeping, he woke up desperate again. But this time was different from the others nights. He woke up crying. He felt fresh tears on his face. He didn't want to keep that nightmare with him anymore. He decided to call Judy. In a few minutes she answered the phone.

"Nick, it is two in the morning." She said, sitting on her bed.

"I know." He answered, trying to hide the fact he was crying. "Can I..." Judy interrupts him.

"Nick..." Judy, said, with a soft voice. "Are you crying?"

"No, why you think that?" He lied.

"For nothing." Judy said, she knew something was wrong. "So what were you saying?"

"I... would ask... to you come here." He finally said. "I want to talk." He said with a fragile voice.

"Sure, I am coming." She said, hanging up the phone.

Since there were no one around the building, she went to his apartment in pajamas. Judy enters in his apartment, the door was opened. She saw he was sat on his bed, ears dropped, cleaning some tears. She closed the door before getting to him. Then she walked towards him.

"Nick, what's is going on?" She said, putting her paw on his shoulder. Suddenly, he hugged her, what scared her a little.

"I can't lose you." He said with a weak voice.

"What do you mean?" She said, trying to comfort him. "Why would you lose me?"

"Iâ€œ| have nightmaresâ€œ|" He was trying to say what he wanted to say to her since the nightmares began. "About the incident in Natural History Museum."

"Calm down." She said hugging him back. "Tell me what were your dream about." She said with a sweet voice.

"I dream that you almost died that night, that I almost killed you." He said, sadly. "And after that you wereâ€œ| afraid of me, and because of youâ€œ|, ZPD arrested me..."

"Nick..." She couldn't believe what she heard.

"Than I become... an untrustworthy foxâ€œ| again." He dropped some tears.

"Nick, it was only a dream." She said, softly, sitting on his lap.
"On that night, I smelled the blueberries on your neck, and I saw in your eyes you were just pretending."

"You looked so afraid..." He replied, sadly.

"I know." She said, trying to comfort him. "We had to make Bellwether believe that was real."

He looked her eyes.

"I trusted you on that night, Nick" She said, looking back to his eyes. "Actually I trust you since you agreed to help me solve the case."

"I know. You wouldn't come back to apologize and ask my help again if you didn't trust me." He replied, hugging her.

"Nick..." She said, cuddling his head. "You should know I am not afraid of you." She said with a soft voice.

They remain in silence for a few minutes, until they broke a part and Judy broke the silence.

"I didn't know foxes could be so emotional." She mocked him.

"Yes, we can be too, Carrots." He said, smiling again and feeling better.

"Hug me, again." She said, softly. He didn't understand why but he did. Hugging her made him feel better.

"Thanks for coming over." Nick said, feeling better while hugging her.

"You are welcomeâ€|. She was a little embarrassed to ask something.
"If you want I can stay for some hours..."

"Would you do that?" He said, putting her in front of him.

"Yeah, why not?" She replied, smiling. "I think I feel better when I am with you."

"Really?" No one ever said that to him.

"Yes." She smiled.

Then they snuggled in his bed. Nick embraced her like she was a pillow. Judy felt he put his tail on her to warm her. _"He is so soft and warm." _She thought. "_Her fur is so soft." _He thought_._

"How can I be afraid of someone who protected me?" She whispered to him. He just looked her and kissed her forehead.

"I don't know, Carrots." He replied, smiling.

"You can't lose me because I won't leave you." She whispered, getting a bit emotional. Those words really froze that fox. Those words really touched him.

"You know I love you." He whispered to her, kissing her forehead.

In a few minutes, both fell asleep. For the first time in some weeks, Nick slept in peace.

That fox couldn't abandon the only one who believed in him, who gave him a better life.

That bunny couldn't leave that fox who proved to have a big and gentle heart.

* * *

>Dear readers, I didn't planned to continue this story, but the first chapter got more than 500 views in 3 days. That made me write this. With this short story I tried to explain some points of Nick and Judy's relationship. I simply can't handle so much cuteness between them. They are so cute together. I love them with all my heart. I love animals will all my heart!

**I will come back writing Zootopia fanfics in july when I will be on holiday. **

**Thanks for reading! Review, please!**

**P.S.: do you want a chapter 3?**

End
file.